are different, and work upon different principles from those in any other stove or range.

The Majestic oven is the most sensitive oven ever made; the fire-box is the most economical in operation, and the draught is the simplest and most perfect.

SHE HAD MONEY ENOUGH.

The Trouble Was That No One Would Take It.

A large worren stood en the center of the crossing of Keurny and Market streets. She was in the way of cable cars, electric cars and vehicles innumerable, for the hour was a busy one. Gripmen sounded gongs, motormen shouted, the cars accomplated but she staid right there uptil a policeiuan dragged her away
"Let go o' mo!" she screamed at him.

"I know my rights. I wasn't born yestergay, and I didn't come to this town to be run over by any critter who happens to wear bine clothes and brass buttons." "What's the matter;" asked the policeman as soon as he could get a chance. ' Matter! Why, see here, Mr. Officer, that concreter told me to get off, an I wanted to go to the ferry an had only rode a black, and I told him I wouldn't, and he told me just to step off while he fixed the spring under the car, an I did, an he rung the bell, an away went the hull outlit, an him a-killn at me."

"Had you paid your fare: ' questioned the policeman.

"Well, no. but I would if he hadn't be n so sassy and pert. He says to me, 'Faro' and I says, 'How much' 'Fivo centa' says he, and I gave him this nickel."

She showed a coin that was plainly a very poor lead counterfait, and the officer explained that a tickel in the slot-machine

Instrumentalists, on the contrary, remain well supplied with hair up to an advanced age, except per-Ormers upon certain instruments The piano and violin, especially the plano, seem to prevent the hair from falling out. The Linde, commenting on this statement, says: "One is tempted to admit this after examining the photographs of Paderewski, Frederic Dawan, Lecuard Beswick, Virdimir de Pachman, Sapelhunkof, Henry Richard Bird and E. Saner, and old Sir Charles Halle, recently deceated at an advanced age, passessing all his hair." The same result is visible in violinists. Here the fleece is less abundant, and there are a few cases of partial buildness, yet Ysaye, Willy Hess, Sarasate; the Hangarian ex-officer, Tivadar Nachez; Joachim, Bettmann, Willy Burmester, Fernandez Arboz, Johannes Wolf and Victor Wilhelms all possess luxuriant heads of hair. Similar hirante results are observable among ladies using the same instruments. The pretty Swedish violinist Frida Scotta has most beautiful black hair, and the Austrian Gabrielle Wietrowerz might let her resplendent sun colored locks drag at her heels.

Other instrumentalists approach the average which obtains in liberal professions—namely, 11 cases of baldness to every 100 individuals. The violencelle, bass viol, alto and harp still preserve the hair fairly, but one would be rash to place absolute faith in the hauthoy, clarinet and flute, which cannot be trusted after 50. On the other hand. brass instruments have a fatal effect on the hair, particularly the key bugle and hern, but above all the trombone, which, it seems, will clean the -kull thoroughly in less than five years

SAYS:

Alien county Republicans seem to be in demand this year. Frank Huff-man, a former Beaver Dam boy, is nominated for member of board of public works.

But this same Allen county boy was nominated in the State convention without the aid of any Republican votes from Alien county. In fact the entire county delegation positively refused to give Huffman any votes, although he is an Allen county boy, and son of the late Lewis Huffman, of Beaver Dam, one of the staunchest Republicaus Allen county ever produced. The vote of the Allen county delegation was cast against Huffman and in Javor of a candidate from Darks county.

There is a little bit of secret political history behind the way that Ralthill and his gang tried to knife Huffman, which shows to what desperate expedients that gang will resort for the purpose of capturing the control of the Republican organization of Ohio for Jo Foraker. It is this: The last Republican convenvention was a McKinley gathering, and the energies of the Foraker gang were directed toward the capturing of the State committee. William Parmenter, of Allen county, in the interest of the Foraker crowd was a candidate for member of the State central committee for the Fourth District. It was necessary for his election that the vote of Darke be cast for him. Now Darke county had a candidate for member of Board of Public Works, the same position to which Frank Huffman, formerly of Allen county, aspired. The Allen county Forakerites, headed by Jim Haifhill, Sam Fletcher and Billy Parmenter, went to the Darke county delegation and pledged the entire vote of Allen county against Huffman and for the Darke county candidate providing the Darke county menter for member of the Central Committee from the Fourth District. The deal was carried through. Allen county cast her vote against a former Allen county man for member of the Board of Public Works, and in return for her dishonor received the vote of Darke county according to the terms

The Horaker gang in Allen county were desperate, and for the purpose of giving Foraker control of the organization were willing to sacrifice the material interest of a worthy young man aspiring to a position which had some elements of profit in being an unmarried man, you do not it, and the only reason he was nomi- know that bargain days and remnant nated was that he had sufficient sales have been going on in the dry strength outside of Allen county to give him the nomination without her is perfect rest. HIGHWAY ROBBERY.

An Alleged Sandbagging Reported to the Police Last Evening.

About 4 o'clock last evening a ound man named brown reported to Chief Haller that his father Chas. B Brown, of 419 south Tanner street, had been sandbagged and robbed on the street Thursday night.

According to the story told the police, the robbery occurred on south Tanner street, near the intersection of Eureka street. Brown arrived home about 11 o'clock with a wound on the back of his head and another 10 beneath one of his eyes The wounds had bled profusely and Brown's clothing was covered with blood. He had drawn his pension money in the eveed, is gold mining. The records of drawn his pension money in the eve-the past three years affords ample ning and when he started home had about 310 in aliver in one trouser pocket and about $20 in bills in agother pocket. He did not know world has gold mining been as active that anyone was near him while piodding along through the deep snow, when he received a blow from behind and fell stunned. He felt someone feeling through his pockets and tried to resist and received another blow beneath the eye which caused him to become unconscious, and when he revived he found that the silver money had been taken but the other money was still in his pocket.

The police have no discriptson of the robber and the robbery was kept quiet so long that they have no idea of capturing the theif.

A DICTIONARY OF USAGE.

The Great Work of the French Academy Which Will Never Be Completed.

The principal occupation of the Academy, pursued without cossation, and having in its completion but a perpetual recommoncement, has been the dictionary. I already hear the exclamation: "The dictionary! But that is surely a joke! The Acadamy will never finish it. After 250 years it has not yet completed the letter A!" I will therefore endeavor to dispel the confusion existing in many minds. The Academy has two dictionaries. One of these, which was begun in 1778, is the "Historical Dictionary," whose plan was suggested by Voltairo. It is a compilation of etymology and history, and of the variations in the significance of words set forth in numerous examples as attested by every French writer inclusively since the fifteenth century. Although this dictionary has in fact only reached the letter A, it has been published in an enormous quarto volume. It will never be completed. The Academy decided, some 12 years ago, to abandon the work.

There is however, besides the "Historical Dictionary," a "Dictionary of Usage," wherein are given only the words with their different acceptations and short and decisive examples of ordinary use. From 1694 to 1878 seven editions of this work have been published, each radically differing from the others. Indeed, a language is constantly subjected to modification. The sense of one word is altered; another word is no longer employed; still another is created to meet a new requirement, as "telegram" or "bicyclet," or a modern thought must find expression, as "decentralization" or "pessimism." It is the same with orthography, in which the constant tendency is toward simplification. In the seventeenth century eenth century, "il devoit;" today we write, "il devait." Fie dictionary is framed as a standard, and hence, like a veritable labor of Pcnelope, must be begun again as soon as it is finished. In the matter of orthography the dictionary of the Academy is an anthority in all institutions of learning, and it would be almost an impossibility for a printing office to diverge therefrom in spelling.

The office of the Academy is not to create but to register words of pure language and such as are usually employed, and while it acknowledges the privilege of all to create new words it retains the right to exclude neologisms from the dictionary wherever it may judge them to be barbarian or of very restricted usage. The work of this department is carried on by six members, named for life, who, assisted by the perpetual secretary, prepare the work. Each word is next submitted by the chairman to the approval of the assembled Academy. The discussions are occasionally exceedingly protracted, particular words occupying ap entire session.-Forum.

FIGHT FOR A GIRL.

A faint yellow light still lingered in the west, although the moon was shining. It was a her night; not a breath of cians, whom he recognized as the saair stirred the stiff limbs of the young perintendent of the Englehird mine, trees or the flery cuctus blooms. The "D-n you," the young fellow stifling heat still seemed to radiate from stifting heat still seemed to radiate from the baked sides of the small adobe houses, and the sandy soil was nucomfortable to walk upon, although the sun bad been down an hour.

The rown was just beginning to show signs of life. Any one arriving there between the hours of 10 in the morning and 6 at night would feel assured that the place was deserted. Doors and shutters were closed, and the fierce rays of the sun bear down from the burnished blue Arizona skies with malignant glee, holding nudispated ever. At oundown, however, humanity began to assert itself. Not that it was much cooler, but the terrible, blinding glare was gone. Men appeared on the one long, straggling street, clad in cotton shirts and trousers, the former turned back from the threat as far as possible. Ponies came loping across the trails from the uearest camps with their swarthy riders, and gambling tents. Sounds of voices and coarse jokes, but they were human wheezy wail of a fiddle and the livelier rattle of a banjo from the upper ficor of place, a rough structure of unpainted Hotel" in large black letters over the

A dunce was evidently in progress, for several penies were tethered to the yucca trees in front, and out on the still night air came the sound of a man's voice shouting orders.

Inside the room it was hot and unconstortable, made more so by the light of half a dozen lamps. There were perhaps 30 men and one third as many women, the former cowboys in high boots and tucked in tronsers, or red shirted miners from the camps 20 miles away in the mountains, and all had pistols or knives gleaming in their belts. The women were brazen, painted things, who had drifted here when they were "down on their luck," and staid because their sex was such a rarity that they were tolerated.

At any rate he was relentless in his parsuit of an object, and a dead shot, two things which made him a man whom it would be anwise to

It pleased him to hear the respectful invitations to dance which he received, but he felt no desire to join them-Jack Devore was rather fastidious in his tastes, and touching one of the painted women was out of the question, but the girl at whose face his eyes had stopped was different.

She looked into his eyes, half hesitating. He had taken a pewerful hold en her, that he could see, and felt sure of victory, but she was flong to one side and his assailant's kuife gleamed in the air. For a moment the two glared at each other, while the other men crowded around, silent and loath to interfere, but bound to see fair play.

Inez sprang between them. "Don't Max. don't!" she cried.

The young man turned to her fiercely. 'Choose!' be commanded. "You know I love you and would give my life for you, but I'd rather see you dead than have him touch you, and, by God, he sban't!'

She locked from one to the other, and lights began to flare in the saloons afraid and doubting. A duel was the surest way, after all.

Jack Devore took his aim with his customary coolness. In reality he cared little for the girl-but he was not used to being thwarted. He could easily kill the young fellow who stood opposite him, but the girl, where would it lead her? His face took on a more serious look than any one had ever seen there. The bodice, of a rich sigilienne silk of a beige shade, is adapted to overbang the waist slightly, being held in place by folds and knotted loops of velvet, of which also the folded collar is made. A saddio yoke of pink cloth fails in deep points from the shoulder, the center point reaching the waist between the fullness of silk, giving a becoming line to the figure.

A handsome design of braiding, in mixed threads of gold, silver and untbrown, is worked at the outline of the yoke and is formed into a cheyron inst below the collar, and the same design is also applied to the deep gauntlets of the pink cloth which serve to finish the sleeves of silk. Thoskirt, of plain godet shape, is of fine twill cloth in a lighter shade of beige than the bodice and is lined with pink silk.

Making Charge For Two Fifty. It was only a little $2.50 goldpiece, but it is surprising the amount of trouble a little thing can sometimes make. The young man had handed it to the cashier in the restaurant and was waiting for his change, while behind him were two or three other people waiting for him to get out of the way.

But cashiers are methodical, and, furthermore, nine-tenths of them have one certain way of making change that invoives dealing in even dollars, as a general thing. No matter what the size of the hill, they take the amount of the purchase out of the first dellar, if it is below that figure, and then hand over the rest of the money in dullars or bills of larger denomination.

That was what puzzled this eashier. "Oh! Two dollars and a half!" she said, while she was trying to make a mental calculation, according to her usual system.

"That's what it is," replied the young man.

"Of course," she returned, slipping it into the drawer. "Check, 40 cents," and she counted out 60 cents in order to ble, after her usual fashion. "One dollar, two dollars, three dollars-no, that's not right."

She was red in the face as she drew the mency back and began ever again. realizing that the pairry half dollar in the goldpiece bad thrown her financial system out of order.

She made three trials before she got the right amount of change on the counter, and-well, if you don't believe that a $2.50 goldpiece will "kneck oot" the average "lightning change" cashier, try it some time and you will be convinced. -Chicago Post.

Why He Was Agitated.

A Scotch tradesman, who had arrows ed, as he believed, £4,000, was surprised at his old clerk showing by a balance sheet that his fortune was £6,000, "It canna be; count again," said the old man. The clerk did count again, and again declared the balance to be £6,000.

The master himself counted, and he also brought out a clear balance of £6,-000. Time after time he cast up the columns; it was still a 6, and not a 4.1 ive with two or three quills on one side. that rewarded his labors. So the old merchant, on the strength of his good fortune, modernized his house and put money in the purse of the carpenter, the feminine shape is the club straw sailer painter and the upholsterer. The semidivided skirtdivided in the back and not in fronthas much to commend it, for it falls gracefully on either side of the saddle at the back and looks like a well cut skirt in front, while the dividing line is not visible when off the wheel,

The coat waists are varied much in the trimming, but very little in shape. White cloth collar and cuffs and white pearl buttous make a pretty contrast on dark blue covert cloth, and a gown of green cloth has trimming of mixed It recently occurred to Tiliany braiding of black and gold.

A gown of gray green cloth is braid ed with black and finished with a turndown collar and coffs of pink fawn rately with gold, silver, and precloth. The skirt is arranged in box plaits on either side.

Skirts buttoned all the way down on one or both sides with smoked peurl buttons and faced up with leather on the inside are considered very desirable. Silk facings are so soon in tatters that the leather is a very welcome change.

Pine textured tweed in two shades of brown, with a sprinkling of cream white, maltes a very pretty dress, which is not seriously affected by dust. The New Bustles. Surely is the bustle again with us, if the increasing variety of forms in which it is offered attests anything. For the as though he had been galvanized, and timid woman who essays it fearfully is rushed out in a shower of rain to the provided a little pad of tufted haircloth only three or four inches across. For drowsy, put out his head from an attic the bolder spirits are the long organ window at the sound of the knocker plaited affairs extending half way down of this article when on the very crest of fashion's wave. Then there are the combined bustle and hip pads, designed to make coat skirts stand out straight all around. In fact, any taste in bustles can be suited.

The Shirt Waist of 1896,

The shirt waist of 1896 certainly justifies its name more than any which have appeared before, remarks the New York Sun, since it has a wide, standing collar and cuffs of white lines buttoned on like those on a man's shirt. Madras cloth in black and white stripes and eern batiste, with colored dots on lace stripes, are very popular for these waists, and, in addition, there is the usual variety of colored lawn, cambric and chev-

Fashion Notes.

The small sleeve is here. It comes direct from Paris and is a striking feature of the newest styles.

The bell cuff is now in high favor. Women who avoid extremes in fashion will adopt the new bishop sleeve. White net spotted with black and black not datied with white are the latest fushions in yeils. Rumors of the overskirt, which is the usual accompaniment of tight sleeves, are afloat again.

In every case, care and Dr. Pierce's Favorite Trescription will give her new life and strength and vitality. In will fill out the hollows in her cheeks, bring color to her lips, origines, her eyes, and make her really and truly a woman. The 'Fa-vorite Trescription' is of inestimable value at three stages in the lives of every woman-when the girl becomes a woman, when the woman becomes a mother, and when the mother becomes a mother, and when the mother becomes incapable of maternity. At these times it gives safety and strength. It is the only medicine now before the public for woman's peculiar allments, adapted to her delicate organization has adapted to her delicate organization. ganization by a regularly graduated physician—an experienced and skilled specialist in these maladies. It cannot do harm in any condition of the system. Its sales exceed the combined sales of all other medicines for women.

Every woman should have and read Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a great book of a thousand pages, pro-fusely illustrated which will be sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps, to pay for mailing only.
